

Dr. Sandra B. Carihfield - AICE - Sarasota High School

AICE International History parent,

In an effort to better communicate with my students and their parents I am asking you to read and respond to the two attached letters. I will e-mail updates every two weeks to parents and students. If you do not wish to receive these updates respond on the form.

The video permission form is required by the district and is to inform you of the films I will possibly use this year. The films all have review questions on line for you and the student to see. This section will illustrate the material the student is responsible to know after watching these films. There will be a class discussion on each of the films. If you would like to preview the films that would be fine and you can e-mail a change in permission if you wish. I have books the student can read if they wish to read instead of seeing it on the screen. Some students opt for that and it is fine with me. I will write a pass to the library and they do not have to be in the class room or be noticed that they are doing another assignment. I have listed all the films I might show time permitting in this class. The administration is aware of my showing these films and I have submitted educational support materials to tie them to the state and county standards. The film Radio Bikini is a famous documentary. Hearts and Minds won the academy award for best documentary in 1974. Nixon/Frost is a Ron Howard film. Hearts and Minds & Nixon/Frost are R rated. The violence is historically accurate violence. Language is the reason for the Frost/Nixon rating that is due to the language of the President of the United States which is accurately portrayed. The language in the other films listed is in the context of soldiers in war. The Missiles of October stars Martin Sheen. I have used some of these films for more than ten years and they are of great value in teaching American History. I enjoy watching them with my students and I have seen most over fifty times. I am using Truman, and Kennedy for the second time. I am adding Argo and Charlie Wilson's War for the first time. I feel this visual component adds to the power of learning. I hope this gives you some insight into how these films are utilized. Thank you for your interest and I hope this answers your questions about them.

Hearts and Minds – Viet Nam conflict documentary [1974, R, best documentary, 112 min]

Nixon/Frost – The famous interviews with Nixon after the Watergate investigation and his resignation [2008, language, R, 122 min]

Hotel Rwanda - Genocide in Rwanda in 1994 [2004, PG 13, 120 min]

Radio Bikini – Nuclear testing in the Pacific in the 1950s [1988, NR]

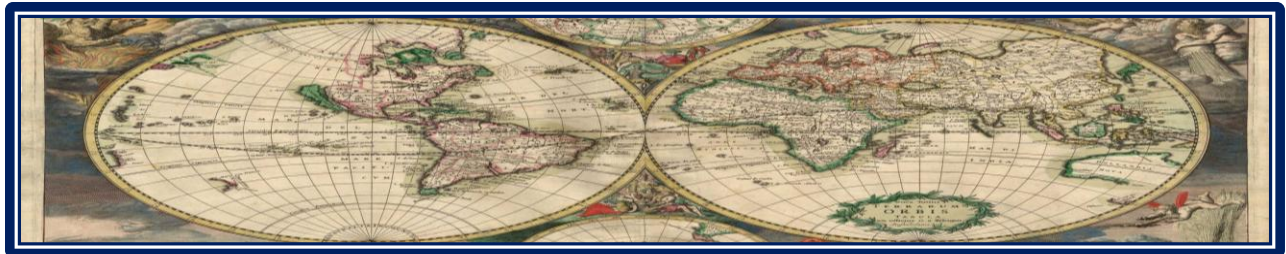

Missiles of October - The Cuban missile crisis in 1962 based on Robert Kennedy's book. Emmy winning TV movie with Martin Sheen. [1974 TV movie]

Truman - Gary Sinise portrays Harry S. Truman. [2000, PG]

Kennedy - Martin Sheen plays Kennedy. [2009, NR]

Argo – The 1979 Iranian hostage crisis. [2012] Best Picture produced by Ben Affleck and George Clooney

Charlie Wilson's War – The war in Afghanistan and America's role in it. [2007] Mike Nichols directed Tom Hanks and Julia Roberts.

I will also ask you to look at my website if you wish to know what we are doing this semester. The site is shshistory.com or you can Google it with my name. All assignments for the entire semester are located on the AICE International History tab. A calendar for the entire semester is also under the calendar tab. Additional review materials, citation help, my biography, my contact information, video questions, supplemental reading assignments, important passwords, links to text books, and citation machine. So if a student is absent or you are making plans to be out of town you will know what we are doing in class.

Each student should have picked up two textbooks by now so they may have textbooks at home. This is their responsibility and cannot be done by me. The students are responsible for reading these materials on their own time. We will not read every page in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, The Cold War, and International History texts but students will be responsible for reading at home to accompany class lectures and instruction. Additional readings will be assigned and located on the website and in the media center. In addition to these opportunities I have had the students assigned an SCF college text as another resource text. Reading is an important component to this course.

The classroom has thirty computers in it, which I wrote a grant to provide my students with computer access to Word 2010 and the Internet. There are rules they must follow to be able to use them but they do not have to use them every day if they do not wish to word process their work. The students may e-mail their assignments to me from home to Blackboard (the old Learn Network).

The student needs 250 note cards, any size, and a ring to hold them together. The student may make these cards from paper but the cards do need to survive for the entire year. They may use a string to tie them together. (Each card will be hole punched, I have three in my classroom they may use.)

There after school seminars designed to review material and assist in writing skills. They are scheduled throughout the year. They are one hour long and are highly recommended. These seminars will give students that extra edge to be successful on the AICE final exam.

I look forward to a great semester with your son/daughter. I hope this information is helpful. Please remember to sign the video permission form and fill out the e-mail information sheet. If you need to talk to me use the information on the website or the syllabus.

Sincerely,

Dr. Sandra B. Carihfield
