

The question my group has decided to research is...Are people defined by numbers in today's society?

My group contains four individuals. We have known each other for years so our group was very compatible.

The perspectives we wished to expand upon were criminalization, health, education, and professions. These four perspectives in-captured the entirety of the group question. We formulated our question after a realization that we are always referred to by designated numbers instead of by name in school. This gave us the perspective of education. We continued to find ways people were defined by numbers through criminalization. When a citizen is incarcerated they are given a number which they are referred to for their entire sentence. This poses problems for when they're reintegrated into society. Our next perspective came upon viewing a health video for a science class. The women in the video were classified as healthy or unhealthy by their height and weight. We originally did not have physical components in our research so it opened our eyes to this perspective. In order for young women to enter certain professions, they need to be a specific height and weight. Their abilities and skills do not matter unless those numbers line up. Individually, I chose the perspective of professional which led me to develop the question...

APre people defined by numbers in their professions in today's society? The answer to this question is yes. This leads me to my reasons...
